DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Neese et al. (US 3,706,319). The face of that reference discloses each of the claimed invention features.

Claims 6-11, 17-18, and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wright et al. (US 2,480,726). The claims are reasonably and broadly construed, in light of the accompanying specification, to be disclosed by Wright as comprising:

a drying chamber 11;

a steam generator 35 for supplying steam to the drying chamber;

a water source 31 for supplying water to the steam generator;

a hose 27 extending between the water source and the steam generator; and a body mounted to the water source having an air vent 71 and a water filter 74 therein. Wright also discloses the claimed body first passage defining the air vent and a second passage defining a water channel, and the filter is associated with the water channel (figure 1), wherein the first passage extends upwardly to allow air to pass therethrough and the second passage extends downwardly to allow water to flow by gravity therethrough (figure 1), wherein the body is a molded piece with the passages formed therein (page 2 lines 19-48), wherein the water channel has an inlet and the filter covers the inlet (page 2 lines 19-48) wherein the air vent has an outlet residing above the inlet of the water channel (page 2 lines 19-48), valve in the hose movable between an open position to allow water from the water source to flow to the steam generator and a closed position to prevent water from flowing from the water source to the steam generator (figure 3) wherein the valve is automatically moved between the open and closed positions during operation of the dryer (figure 3) wherein the body is removably mounted to the water source (figure 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 12-16 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wright. Wright discloses the claimed invention, as rejected above, except for the type of fastening means, control means, or material type. It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to recite those features with the teachings of Wright, since that prior art references teaches the same structure and function, regardless of the specifically claimed fastening means, control means, or material type.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Other prior art references cited contain one or more elements of the claimed invention that can be used to reject the claims.
